Jenny Wong

Research Scientist at Fetch.Ai

At Fetch we are building a decentralised framework in which autonomous agents in IoT devices can conduct economic transactions.

Jenny's work involves analysing the economic incentives and security aspects of the blockchain protocol design, where the transactions take place.

She has a PhD in string theory and has previously worked as a researcher in theoretical physics and mathematics.

www.fetch.ai
The emergent intelligence protocol